

NAI Horizon adds former brokerage firm owner Christopher Lewis to its industrial, land divisions

☒ PHOENIX, ARIZ. – NAI Horizon is pleased to announce it has hired land and industrial specialist Christopher Lewis, former designated broker and owner of a Valley brokerage company.

Lewis, a native of Omaha, Nebraska, has extensive experience in distressed properties, REOs and underperforming assets. In addition to value-add opportunities, Lewis has significant experience in vacant and agriculture land. He also possesses considerable knowledge of the trustee sales process.

Lewis, who will serve as a vice president at NAI Horizon, was designated broker/owner of Arizona Brokerage Company for 6 years.

“I am happy that Chris decided to join our NAI team,” said Terry Martin-Denning, CEO/Designated Broker of NAI Horizon. “His areas of expertise fill a niche that will allow NAI to better serve our clients.”

Lewis is a graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. His philanthropy includes volunteering with Phoenix Children’s Hospital and the Boys and Girls Clubs of Phoenix.
